We create access to human services, so people can find help when they need it.

Together Center lowers barriers to services and helps people in distress. In additions to providing easy access to service providers, we support those seeking help. We find answers, locate translators, make referrals and ease stress and confusion.

We provide free public telephones and other resources that are a gateway to finding help. The Cultural Navigator Program and other advocates provide support at our front door to address homelessness, food, healthcare and other needs thanks to partnerships to meet urgently expanding needs.

“Together Center was there.”

Before Deb Sogge was the Executive Director of Sammamish Chamber of Commerce, she was a stay-at-home mom with three kids. Her husband was laid off and later diagnosed with cancer. It was a difficult time for her family. “Thankfully, we found counseling services at Together Center. We used vouchers at a local retailer that we received. We used the services of HealthPoint at Together Center, as well.”

“The Center was really important to helping us survive while we adjusted to difficult times and gave us a leg up as we worked to move forward in our lives.”
